Dates to remember:
DANWA General Meeting— Calvary Christian Church in the annex just north of the church, 3900 Epperly Dr. at 7:00 pm, second Monday of the month.

CERT General Training Meeting, at 7:00 pm, Del City Community Center, second Tuesday of the month.

Greetings Friends and Neighbors:

What a whirlwind month May has been. We started with the Armed Forces Day / Shriners Parade. Boy wasn't that a great parade with the fly over, the DCHS band, the military units and more. Then came the severe weather that lasted past Mother's Day, with more rain than we had seen thus far this year. Then we ended the month with Memorial Day and the bulk trash pickup. Oh, did you hear, we gave away that 43 inch HD TV, (I think Joe put a picture of the winner in here somewhere).

At our June 12 meeting, we will have a special guest speaker. Del City, Acting City Manager J. D. Hock will be with us to give the latest and greatest goings on with Del City. He has agreed to do a Q & A Session, so bring your notepads. It promises to be a great evening.

On July 1st & 2nd, Tinker AFB is having an air show with several on base activities, including demonstration by the Blue Angels. Further info is available on the Del City and the Tinker web sites.

July 4th Independence Day

At 6 pm on July 10th, prior to our 7 pm DANWA meeting, we will be having a covered dish eat-a-thon. Contact Pat Satterwhite 405-412-7925 or email psatterwhite@cox.net with your entree. Joining us that evening will be Oklahoma House Member for Dist. 94, Andy Fugate, Mr. Fugate is always a wealth of information so bring your listing cap.

There are a host of other upcoming events to be announced, so stay tuned. There is one event that we are going to need some help organizing and that's "Trunk or Treat", if you are interested in contributing in any way, call or text me, please.

New law provides security of Oklahoma election workers.

A bill creating new security protections for election officials is now the law in Oklahoma. Senate Bill 481, authored by Senator Dave Rader and Representative Jeff Boatman, was signed into law by Governor Kevin Stitt last month.

The new law makes it a crime to harass, intimidate, threaten or "dox" an election official. ("Doxing" is the release of personally identifiable information with malicious intent.)

"It is unfortunate that even here in the State of Oklahoma, election officials have been doxed, harassed and even threatened by people who believe false claims about the conduct and administration of elections," State Election Board Secretary Paul Ziriak said.. "As one those who has been doxed and threatened, I can tell you that election officials across this state are very grateful to the Legislature and the Governor for taking these threats seriously and enacting this legislation to deter and punish such actions in the future."

Additionally, the new law makes it a crime to impersonate an election official with the intent to influence an election. Senate bill 481 also allows certain election officials to apply for restricted voter records status preventing their residential addresses from being publicly disclosed.

"All election workers should be able to serve out state and perform their civic duties without fear of threats and harassment," Ziriak said.

Voters can learn more about election security and integrity on the State Election Board website.

Another scam using Wal-mart as cover

If you get an email from Wal-mart, tread lightly! Check Point Research's latest Brand Phishing Report reveals the retailer is at the top of the latest chart for most imitated brands.

Wal-mart accounted for 16% of all scam attempts and climbed from 13th place in the fourth quarter of 2022, mostly due to an immense phishing campaign built around the come-on of a "supply chain collapse" that urged victims to click on a malicious survey link.

That particular Wal-mart phishing attempt isn't the only one the company has suffered through. Scammers also send sham emails pretending to be from Wal-mart, asking for participation in a survey.

There's typically a link inside those emails that takes a person to a fraudulent website where the scammer either tries to nab their personal information or infects their device with malware.

Wal-mart says that, yes, it does surveys, but warns consumers that they do not give away gift cards through Twitter, Facebook, or text messages. "If you receive a notice through one of these channels, it is likely a scam. Do not click on any links in these messages," the company said.

WhatsApp scams proliferating

Finance scams are headed WhatsApp's way, too. Reportedly, WhatsApp users are current targets of scammers hoping to drain a bank account or two courtesy of the infamous "friend in need" text message. In that scheme, a scammer professes to be the child of the potential victim, saying that they're in trouble and need money to get out of it.

An alternate version of the scam is also on the streets, according to Aura. It's still one that involves fraudsters impersonating a victim's child on WhatsApp and asking unsuspecting parents to transfer funds into a scammer's bank account. However, in this version, the scammer tries to convince Mom or Dad that their phone was lost or broken to justify this new number. In other variations, the scammer may claim to have been locked out of their mobile banking app.

Either way, the scammer still wants the same thing – the parents' bank account details so they can transfer the money to buy a new phone. We don't need to tell you what happens once the victim sends the money, but "poof!" is the operative word.

The Aura analysts say the most prudent thing to do with any WhatsApp message like this is to first verify your child's supposed updated number by sending a text message or making a phone call to confirm whether they've actually lost access to their phone.

It would also be a huge plus if you verbally confirmed any bank account details before initiating a fund transfer. That way, if you recognize your child's voice, the odds are in your favor.

I hope these "scam", "phishing", "spam", etc. warnings are helpful.

Two things that absolutely fascinate me are piano players and singing groups, check out Anthony Burger and Gaither Vocal Band. Sadly Anthony Burger passed away in 2006 while performing but wow the guy could really tickle those ivories (old term for playing the heck out of a piano). The Gaither Vocal Band of that same era sang many songs with such harmony and one person in particular David Phelps who is a tremendous singer.

So if you are inclined, google them differently and enjoy sheer perfection.
